Partner Programs

OUR partners with a variety of offices on campus to support research in distinct disciplinary areas. If your work falls under one of these, please indicate so by checking the appropriate box below. These partners are excited to collaborate with projects and provide resources to help with the success of the work.

- The Barbara and Richard Csomay Center for Gerontological Excellence: The Csomay Center supports research and opportunities that promote optimal aging and quality of life for all older adults and their caregivers.

- The Office of Community Engagement: The Office of Community Engagement serves as a bridge between campus and community, supporting students, faculty and staff who seek to incorporate community partners into their research and course projects.
- The Office of Sustainability and the Environment: The Office of Sustainability and the Environment supports research that creates and/or advances sustainability research through collaborative and interdisciplinary work.
- Center for Social Science Innovation: The mission of the Center for Social Science Innovation is to advance, support, and celebrate social science research. It supports research on topics including but not limited to democracy and civic engagement, health and well-being, community, crime and law, media, human behavior and technological adaptation, race and social inequality.
- Obermann Center for Advanced Studies: The Obermann Center for Advanced Studies is the only research institute at the University of Iowa that supports and connects scholars and artists from all disciplines at all stages of their careers, with a special focus on the arts and humanities. We help the university community—from undergraduate students to senior faculty—cooperate to tackle local and global issues.
